EX-GOVERNOR SHEPHERD.

Some Interesting Facts About His Work in the Mexican Mines.

The Great Improvements He Has Made-The Washingtonians With Him.

A REPUBLICAN reporter spent some time yesterday with Mr. Lyndon Stevens, who is the partner of Gov. Shepherd in his mining interests at Batopilas, and Mr. E. S. Maunder, who has just returned from the mines.

In Mr. Stevens's office are samples of virgin silver showing the richness of the deposits, and numerous photographs picturing the location of the works and showing the immense amout of improvement that has been made by the governor.

"How many Washington people have you at the mines?" asked THE REPUBLICAN.
"There have quite a good many. There "Oh, we have quite a good many. There is Will Shopherd, William H. Hoffman, Samuel and John Young, Dr. and Mrs. Ross, Alex. Merchant, Mr. and Mrs. Stilson, E. W. A. Jorgensen, Howard Nyman, Charlie Cunningham and his son, Rebert Cowell, and a colored man by the name of Walker whom I took down with me."

"Are they pleased with the place?"
"The climate is delightful and there is no Ane climate is delightful and there is no inconvenience from the weather except during the rainy season, and then the rain pours in torrents. You will remember that last year a portion of the old wall about the haciends a pertion of the old wall about the hacienda was washed out by the torrent pouring down the mountain. Then the scenery is the grandest that you ever witnessed. We are located in a valley, with high mountains all around us, and some of them rise from the ground almost perpendicular, aweing one by their massive grandeur."

"How much work has the governor done, then?"

"Well, it is hard to say. He has constructed
"Well, it is hard to say, a mile in length "Well, it is hard to say. He has constructed a railway that is very nearly a mile in length from the San Mignel mine, which is the principal one, to the hacienda; he has built a wall about the hacienda 500 feet in length, 6 feet thick at the base and 4 feet at the top, and 14 feet in height; he has erected one fifteen-stamp mill, and is putting up another of the same capacity, besides two or three smaller ones, and he has made improvements in the haciends which have completely astounded the Mexicans, who had never seen a man of his energy and perseverence before. I uppose a million dellars have been spent on these improvements."

"He has twelve, I think, now; but, as I said, the San Miguel is the principal one. It's there where we employ the largest number of labor ers."
"Do you find any difficulty in securing

"Do you find any difficulty in securing labor?"

"Yes; that is our main difficulty. You see we can get only the peons. They go into the mines absolutely naked, except the breech cloth, and we have to search them closely when they come out to see if the rascals have any silver concealed about them."

"If they are naked, or nearly so, how can they conceal any silver?"

"You have no idea of the ingenious devices they have for stealing. Here," said Mr. Maunder, pulling a piece of ore nearly the size of an egg from his pocket, "is a piece that was taken from a prop. He was examined by the searcher, and was about to be pronounced all right when I noticed a peculiar motion of his mouth, and I asked him a question. He hesitated in answering, and the searcher made him open his mouth, and then took out this piece."

"How many men do you employ?"

"From three to five hundred; someimes more."

"When is the governor coming on?"

"Probably he will leave in about sixty days—may be not so soon. He wants to complete some other improvements before he takes his vacation, and when they are finished he will come to the states for a needed rest. He has now been there three years, and has done an immense deal of work, as I have shown you, and he deserves some re

AFTER THE APACHES.

Gen. Crook Not Allowed to Pursue Them into Mexico.

In response to a communication from Secre tary Frelinghuysen inquiring whether there will be any objection to our troops following the Apaches from Arizona over the border, the Mexican minister has replied that such action cannot be properly taken without the express con-sent of the Mexican senate. A telegram was ac-cordingly sent to Gen. Crook Saturday afternoon by the secretary of war directing him to be careful to observe the convention with Mexico on this subject, and to restrain all troops under his command from crossing the troops under his command from crossing the boundary line into Mexican territory. The telegram was addressed to Gen. Crook's de-partment headquarters at Prescott, with in-structions to forward it to him in the field, his present whereabouts being unknown at the department.

Senor Romero, the Mexican minister, said to an associated press reporter last night that he had already placed himself in telegraphic communication with his government with reference to the representations made to him by Secretary Frelinghuysen on the subject of obtaining consent for United States troops to cross the Mexican border in pursuit of raiding Indiaus. As telegraphing was, however, an unsatisfactory method of communication upon such subjects he proposed, he said, to for-ward an official letter by mail. At present, he thought it premature to hazard an opinion as to the view which the Mexican senate would take of the matter, but he was certain they would agree to anything reasonable. He said he did not believe there would be time to accomplish anything in relation to this par-ticular case at the present session of the senate, which would expire in the latter part of May, as his official letter would not reach Mexico for two or three weeks, and it would be some time after that before the subject would be laid before the senate officially. would be laid before the senate officially.

Gallant Seaman. Capt. Henry Wilson, commanding the United States steamship Lackawanna, reports to the Navy department from Honolulu March 20, commending the gallantry of Louis Williams, captain of the foretop of that ship, in rescuing a shipmate from drewning. On the night of March 16 Thomas Moran, On the night of March 16 Themas Moran, boatswain, attempted to desart by swimming to the shore. When 150 yards from the vessel he gave out and cried for help. A boat was lowered as soon as possible, but in the meantime Williams had jumped overboard, and, swimming in the direction of the cries for help, reached the drowning man in time to hold him above water until the boat arrived, some minutes afterward, and picked them up. Capt. Wilson says that but for Williams's prompt action Moran would have drowned, for on arriving on board it took some half hour's time to bring him to consciousness. He also commends, in this consciousness. He also commends, in this con-nection, the conduct of J. L. Fassoure and H. P. Glifbery, seamen, who sprang into the water and reached the men about the time that the boat arrived.

RIVERS AND HARBORS.

Something About the Expenditures-The Plans of the Engineers Approved.

The act of Aug. 2, 1882, "making appropriations for the construction, repair, and preservation of certain works on rivers and harbors and for other purposes" (known as the river and harbor bill), provided for an expenditure of $18,738,875 upon 432 separate works of improvement.

The plans of the engineers have been approved by Secretary Lincoln, and the works ordered in all but nine cases in which the appropriations aggregated $318,000. The principal items of this amount are $210,000 "for the improvement and protection of the navigable channels of the Sacramento and Eather rivers," and $75,000 "for improving the Kautake view Kentucky by the creek the Kentucky river, Kentucky, by the erection of a lock and movable dam at Beattysville at the junction of three forks." The latter sum has not been expended, for the reason that the act making the appropriation conferred no authority to purchase a site from conterred no authority to purchase a site for the lock and dam. Secretary Lincoln declines to authorize the expenditure of the $219,000 included in the first item, because the improvement and pro-tection of the channels of these rivers by the erection of restraining barriers upon the Yuba, American, and Bear rivers, tributaries of the Sacramento and Feather, to hold back the flow of delritus, caused by hydraulic mining, would involve the expenditure within the next eight years of a million and a half of dollars with doubtful results, and would at of dellars with doubtul results, and would at best prove but a partial remedy if hydraulic mining should continue. The remaining seven item of appropriation aggregate $33,-060, the expenditure of which has not been ordered by the secretary because in each in-stance the amount is deemed wholly insufficient to accomplish the results desired. Work under the above appropriations has therefore been deferred to await future action by con-

The amounts appropriated for river and

The amounts appropriated for river and harbor improvements at 186 different points will be expended by June 30, 1883, and as no provision for continuing these works was made at the last session of congress operations will be suspended at that date.

Of the total amount appropriated by the act of August, 1882, Geu. Wright, chief of engineers, estimates that about $5,225,000 will remain unexpended at the end of the fiscal year June 30, 1883, and will be available to continue the works of improvement at 237 points.

The amounts which will remain June 30 unexpended, and to the credit of these works of improvement, respectively, will vary from $100 to $550,000, the latter sum being for the improvement of the Mississippi river, and the dates at which it is estimated these sums improvement of the Mississippi river, and the dates at which it is estimated these sums will have been expended cover the period from July, 1883, to June 30, 1834.

On the list of works which will thus be continued during the next fiscal year an improvement of the harbors at Portland, Me., Portsmouth, N. H., Newburypoft, Boston, and Nantucket, Mass.; Providence river, R. I.; the breakwater at New Haven, Conu.; the Hudson river, Buttermilk channel, Gowanus bay; the harbors at New Rochelle and Port Chester, New York; Baritan bay, N. J.; the Delaware river and Delaware breakwater; the harbor at Baltimore, Md.; Cape Fear river, Potomac river, the ship channel, Galveston bay; the Mississippi river improvements; improvement of Kentucky river; Harbor of Refugee, Grand Marias, Michigan, and the harbor at Milwaukee; improving the Illinois river, the Sault St. Marie river, Michigan, and the harbors at Cleveland, Buffalo, Toledo, Charlotte, N. Y.; Oswego, and Oakland, Cal.

In addition to the unexpended balances of

In addition to the unexpended balances of the appropriations made by the act of 1882, there still remains a balance of $601,257 of the there still remains a balance of $601,257 of the appropriations of previous years, which will eventually become available for the specific objects for which it was appropriated, no part of which is likely, however, to be expended during the present fiscal year. Of this amount $100,000 for improving Harlem river, N. Y., awaits the acquisition of the right of way by commissioners of the supreme court of the state of New York for the proposed canal or cut to connect the Harlem and Hudson rivers.

or meeting of the Literary society at Mr. Alexander Graham Bell's handsome home Saturday night was more than ordinarily interesting. It was art night and the artists of the society had the floor. They occupied the evening most delightfully. Crisp, clever papers were read by Mr. Richard N. Brooke, Mr. E. F. Andrews, Mr. E. C. Messer, and Mr. E. H. Miller. Mr. Brooke talked about Freuch art and its disciples. Mr. Andrews ran over the history of art to show that it was of peace peaceful. Mr. Messer depicted the sunshine and the shadows of modern art. Mr. Miller eloquently described the sur of etching and its master pieces. Mr. Henry Ulke, who was, in the programme was not prepared with a paper, but in a quaint little impromptu he spoke very happily of the healthful naturalness of a growing school of modern art. Each speaker was frequently applauded. After the formal exercises were over, the members of the society and their guests strolled into the library and examined Mr. Miller's etchings and the paintings exhibited by the other artists.
